ALTE 615 Unit 7 Assignment 2

The HCC site includes the comprehensive of learning theories that can be incorporated to alternative education. I could divide the teaching tip of HCC to five categories that can utilize in alternative school.

1. Establish classroom / school climate in terms of social aspect. This category is important tasks for getting a class started in the right way and students can socialize with each other. This category includes the first day and communication.
2. Preparation for teachers and appropriate courses. The teachers and school have to design the proper courses, so that can be justified from an administrative, accreditation, instructor, or even student perspective. Moreover, teachers also have to prepare themselves to be ready and have positive feeling about teaching before they will teach students. This category includes preparing a course syllabus, preparing a lesson plan, course design, using questions effectively in teaching, teaching organization and feel good about teaching.
3. Encouraging and developing learner and teacher attention. This way that can help teachers create and modify their teaching to be effectively able to motivate students' attention into the class. Teachers should focus the student's attention on what needs to be recognized. This category includes teaching techniques and motivating students.
4. Evaluating and understanding humans. Teachers should know this category because they will understand how to people learn and what is the effect of learning from result of assessment. This category includes instructional assessment techniques, human development and how people learn.
5. Dealing with difficult behaviors and stress. I believe this category is important to understand how to behave with those students. This category includes dealing with difficult behaviors and dealing with stress.

Along with multiple intelligences theory and processing and cognitive enhancement (PACE), these theories have objective concerning the learning ability development. Multiple intelligences theory wants teachers to understand that students have the different sets of developed intelligences. Therefore, teachers should manage their teaching style that can engage most or all of the intelligence. PACE can help teachers and parents to know the ways to help their children to be able to learn effectively. This theory suggests five steps that can help students learn. Five steps are to understand the cause, recognize the skill necessary, find out weak of each skill, learn what needs to happen to improve learning skills and take steps to help students gain the skills need.
